All India Law Teachers Congress (AILTC)

The All India Law Teachers Congress (AILTC) is a premier registered society representing law faculty, researchers, and academicians across various universities and colleges throughout India. Founded with a vision to elevate standard legal pedagogy, AILTC is dedicated to promoting excellence in legal education, research, and institutional policy. The organization acts as a collective voice to safeguard the legitimate rights, professional welfare, and academic freedom of legal educators before statutory and educational authorities.

To bridge theoretical legal studies with evolving judicial and societal needs, AILTC regularly organizes national and international conferences, seminars, and workshops on contemporary legal issues. These platforms facilitate scholarly exchange, encourage interdisciplinary publications, and promote modern teaching methodologies. Beyond academic engagement, the Congress builds a strong sense of fraternity and professional solidarity among faculty across India while collaborating with policy makers and the judiciary to strengthen the broader legal framework.

Australian Tamil Congress (ATC), United States Tamil Action Group (USTAG)

The ATC is a community organisation representing the Tamil community in Australia. It works for human rights, social justice, cultural preservation, and community development. The USTAG is a grassroots advocacy organisation founded in 2009. It works to support the rights and aspirations of the Tamil community and advocates for a political solution to the ethnic conflict in Sri Lanka.

International Conference on Legal Solutions and Human Rights Perspectives on the Sri Lankan Tamil and Kashmiri Pandit Experience its fifth consecutive edition, this international conference continues the ongoing collaboration between the All India Law Teachers Congress (AILTC) , and the Australian Tamil Congress (ATC). Each year, this partnership has examined the experiences of Sri Lankan Tamils and Kashmiri Pandits through a different disciplinary lens. This edition is organised in association with the Faculty of Law and adopts the theme "Legal Solutions and Human Rights Perspectives," centring the discussion on legal frameworks, mechanisms, and remedies available to both communities.

The conference examines these experiences through the interconnected lenses of ethnic violence, forced displacement, human rights, and transitional justice. Both communities have undergone profound social, political, and cultural disruption, shaping contemporary questions of identity, belonging, memory, and cultural preservation.

This edition interrogates the role of international and domestic legal frameworks in addressing displacement, rehabilitation, minority rights, accountability, reparations, and the right to return. It brings together comparative scholarly perspectives on transitional justice, examining legal mechanisms for recognition, reconciliation, and protection of human dignity and sustainable peace, while fostering dialogue among legal scholars, practitioners, and policymakers.
